Making a Difference on Behalf of the Profession

As the charitable arm of the actuarial profession, The Actuarial Foundation has, for two decades, provided education and research opportunities to the public and the profession. The Foundation delivers math and financial literacy classroom resources to teachers, awards scholarships to deserving students, and provides the public with financial education resources. It also raises the intellectual capital of the profession through funded research.

This presentation will spotlight some recent and exciting accomplishments of the Foundation and how actuaries in the Portland area can make a difference in their communities.

Pamela A. Cone

Pam Cone has been serving as the Chief Marketing Officer for Milliman since 2003. Pam plays a leading role in directing Milliman's marketing, branding, communications, and business development initiatives, and she also contributes to the professional development program for its consultants.
