Description:

Actuaries across all disciplines are bound by professionalism standards, regulatory requirements, and standards of practice. Laura will speak about her experience in navigating these standards as regulator and a practicing actuary, including the opportunities and challenges of working across multiple lines of business. She will also provide an update on the NAIC's Joint Qualified Actuary Subgroup work to establish a uniform definition of a "qualified actuary."

Laura Cali, an actuary who led the Oregon Insurance Division through the review of 2014 health plan rates amid major reforms, became Oregon Insurance Commissioner on July 15, 2013. While Laura originally joined the division in mid-2011 as a casualty actuary specializing in workers' compensation and medical malpractice, she became heavily involved in health insurance issues in 2012 as chief actuary and manager of the division's product regulation section. She previously worked as a consulting actuary for Towers Watson in San Francisco, overseeing projects for self-insured companies, public entities, and insurers. She started her career at Liberty Mutual's home office in Boston, building rating models for workers' compensation and general liability lines of business. Laura grew up in Sonoma, California, and received her Bachelor of Arts degree in mathematics and economics from Boston University.
