Description

Craig Reynolds, past-President of the Society of Actuaries, will provide an update on recent developments with the Society of Actuaries. He anticipates addressing the new strategic plan for the SOA, pending changes to the examination system, the Actuaries Climate Index, diversity efforts within the organization and the profession, and international growth of the profession and the SOA. Ample time will be allowed for Q&A, so this will be your opportunity to ask questions about the SOA and provide input to the SOA leadership.

Craig Reynolds, FSA, MAAA

Craig is a principal and consulting actuary with the Life insurance consulting practice of the Seattle office of Milliman. He joined the firm in 1989. Craig co-manages Milliman's Seattle Life practice and works primarily on assisting clients with development, analysis, and validation of long-term financial forecasts on a statutory, U.S. GAAP, or IFRS basis. He and his team often work on financial reporting and forecasting, systems implementation, predictive analytics, litigation support, and mergers and acquisitions.

Craig is a long-time volunteer with the SOA and the American Academy of Actuaries. He completed his one-year term as President of the SOA in October, and will remain on the leadership team and the Board for two more years.
